COVID-19 Children, Youth and Family Programs

Our Children, Youth and Family Programs are designed to meet the academic, social, emotional, and physical development needs of children through in-person and virtual environmental and outdoor education programs. In-person programs are held exclusively outdoors with an emphasis on unstructured time for children to play and explore nature with their peers. Virtual programs are designed to support STEM-based (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) learning outcomes for families with children in remote and hybrid learning school environments. Your support will help to sponsor low-income and economically challenged families to participate in these important programs.

IN-PERSON PROGRAMS

Center-Based Programs - Our small group, outdoor programs are designed to help children feel a sense of normalcy and connectedness to others at a difficult time of social isolation and remote learning due to COVID-19.

- Art in the Forest
- Nature Play Series
- Girls into the Wild
- Storytelling in the Forest
- Nature Preschool
- Being Animals Series
- Outdoor Skills Series
- Saturday Science Walks

Family Field Trip Program – Fun for the whole family to discover and learn together

- Life in a Stream (Fall/Spring)
- Mountains & Valleys (Winter/Spring)

VIRTUAL PROGRAMS

Home-based Programs – Through take-home activities, a pre-recorded video, and a live-stream video session, we will focus on specific topics to meet your child’s science curriculum learning requirements.

- Life Underground
- Predator and Prey
- Flowers and Plants
- Decomposers
- Metamorphosis
- Insects

Virtual Field Trips – Discover nature with a “pre-trip” video at home activities, and a live-stream session.
